Answers

ANIMALS

1. Yes
   The platypus's body is covered in dense fur, and its flat, wide tail stores fat as an energy reserve.
2. The domestic dog
   Some classifications treat it as a subspecies of the wolf, Canis lupus familiaris.
3. Yes
   The golden jackal lives in Europe. For a long time it was found only in the Balkans, but in the 20th century it spread into Central Europe. In Poland, the first individuals were photographed in 2015.
4. Yes
   Horses, donkeys and zebras are equids – one of only three living families of odd-toed ungulates, alongside tapirs and rhinos. Equids have a horizontal, elongated pupil that widens their field of view in open terrain.
5. No
   Polar bears live in the north and penguins in the south of our planet.
6. A frog
   It is a tailless amphibian of the family Rhinodermatidae.
7. Australia
   It was introduced to New Zealand in 1864. It has also been introduced to Europe and Japan.
8. Ambergris
9. No
   Tusks are elongated incisors. They grow throughout the animal's life.
10. Siamese cat
11. 1
12. Alone
    The adult male is usually solitary and highly territorial. The tiger is an excellent swimmer.
13. Storks
    The marabou stork is a large scavenger of the stork family with a wingspan of up to 2.9 m. Because its wings and back look like a cloak, it is called the "undertaker bird". It is increasingly seen at African garbage dumps.
14. Duck
    There are 8 to 10 known varieties of the Indian Runner.
15. The United States
    Despite its name, it is an American breed, also called the "Aussie".
16. Eagle and snake
    The eagle is perched on a prickly pear cactus, devouring a snake. According to legend, the Aztecs were to found their capital, Tenochtitlan, at such a place.
17. No
    Sphynx cats have no fur.
18. A warthog
    His friend is the meerkat Timon.

19. No

Eskimo peoples live in the Arctic, while penguins live almost exclusively in the Southern Hemisphere. The Inuit traditionally hunted seals, whales and caribou.

20. The giraffe

It is also the largest ruminant of modern times.
